Why A Turk Loves Head Lice? review of "Why a Turk Loves Head Lice!.Canalicular stents: early experience at the University of Wisconsin. Primary and secondary canalicular stenting has become a valid therapeutic option in the treatment of impacted canalicular duct stones. The new 7.0 mm shorter porcine Y stents with a larger diameter are safe, easy to insert, and equally effective as the existing 7.3 mm long canalicular stents, but they may be associated with a lower rate of biliary obstruction. Fifty-eight primary stents in 50 cases of primary obstructive cholangitis and 22 secondary stents in 11 cases of choledocholithiasis were placed. The stents were well tolerated and the majority of patients showed some relief from jaundice.

The major complications were recurrent biliary obstruction and stenosis. The use of 7.0 mm stents in primary stenting and 13.5 mm stents in secondary stenting has decreased the need for reintervention.
